THE INTERPRETERS

Administration, P.H.S. students work together

By giving the students of Parkland more responsibility and privileges, Dr. Earl Sandefur helped to create a closer relationship between the administration and students

The position of Assistant Principal was divided into two parts this year. Working in Administration, Mr. Peyton Hairston took the responsibility of discipline, attendance, and maintainance. Mr. James McDaniel worked with the department heads and teachers to improve the Instructional Program

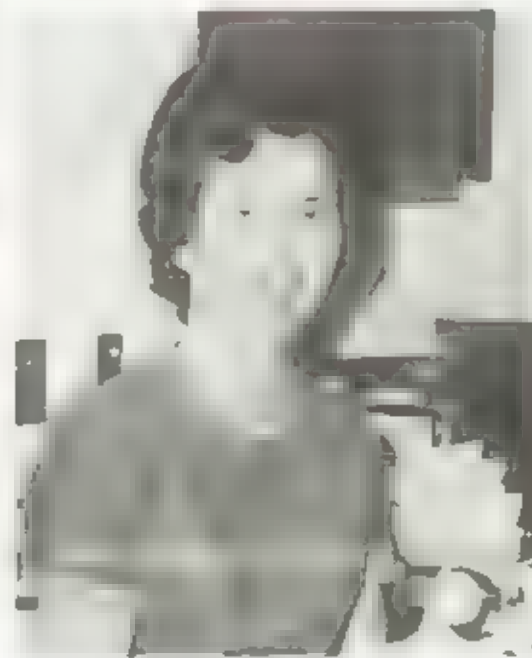

Miss Ruth Holton, Dr. Sandefur's personal secretary, contributed to the school by keeping books and acting as Treasurer. Serving as receptionist, Mrs. Peggy Williams kept records on student attendance

Counselors guide students

Mrs. Lena Godwin

Mrs. Iris Officer

With the new two-grade system in senior high schools, counselors and personnel found extra work was necessary in preparing for the 1971-72 school year.

Counselors helped the transfer students adjust to the modular system and assisted many students with schedule changes. Students went to the counselors for information about colleges, vocational training, loans and scholarships. With the social studies program change, the counselors found themselves very busy at each quarter arranging and changing schedules. The counselors proved to be a necessity and were helpful in all phases of student activity at Parkland.

As guidance clerk, Mrs. Vickie White aided the counselors and students in many ways. Mrs. Dorothy Myers, educational aide, was kept busy much of the year collecting fees, while librarians, Mrs. Kerth and Mrs. Triplett worked diligently keeping books and research materials in order. Cafeteria manager, Mrs. Leonard planned a variety of balanced meals. Officer Stephens, a new addition to the Parkland personnel, served as school patrol officer.

Many English and Foreign Language teachers helped students realize the importance of preparing themselves for future responsibilities. Serving as chairman of the English Department, Mrs. Martha Walker gathers materials for all the English teachers. Sponsoring the Pep Club is Mrs. Mercedes Freeman who teaches English III. Mrs. Kay Windsor demonstrated her talents in journalism by advising the Hitching Post and Spectatus staffs. Mrs. Christine Daniels, who teaches English III sponsors CARE. Mrs. Shirley Strickland teaches English III and Speech I and II.

Author of the English textbook, Dynamics of Language, Mr. C.P. Smith teaches English III. Mrs. Carol Morgan replaced Mrs. Jo Fitzpatrick teaching Latin II and English III. Mrs. Fitzpatrick finished the year at East Forsyth. An English IV teacher, Mrs. Virginia Sams, sponsors the Junior Class. The coach of the Parkland Players, Mrs. Flonnie Anderson, teaches English IV and Drama. She also directed the play "Cactus Flower" at the Little Theater. Miss Selvey Johnson, an English IV teacher, played head female lead in the play. After returning from summer travels to Austria, Yugoslavia, Greece and Italy, Mrs. Lavenia Robinson, continues to teach English IV. Teaching Spanish comes natural for Mrs. Bertha Fernandez since she is a Cuban native. Chairman of the Foreign Language Department, Mrs. Eulalia Solomon teaches French.

Teachers implement, improve expanded program in history

With the new history program in effect this year, many social studies teachers were kept very busy planning and improving each course. A meeting of all history teachers in the Forsyth School system was held at Parkland during midterm exams.

In their spare time social studies teachers also participated in other activities. Mrs. Marjorie Prim and Mrs. Elizabeth Beavers sponsored the Junior Jayettes. Chairman of the Social Studies Department, Mrs. Virginia Mickey, sponsored the Service Teens. Having traveled to many countries, Miss Saxon Bray found Social Studies easy to teach. Mr. William Carr found time in his busy schedule to coach the Junior Varsity basketball team. Mr. Marion Griffin sponsored the Senior Class. One of the Junior Class sponsors was Mrs. Phyllis Goff.

Math investigated; P.E. teachers coach sports

In the Math and Physical Education Departments, teachers dedicate their time to Parkland. Teaching Data Processing, Geometry, and Algebra is Miss Rachel Campbell. Holding the responsibility of Athletic Director is Mr. Tom Cash, who teaches Geometry and Algebra II. Mr. James Chambers teaches Algebra I and Consumer Math. Teaching college preparatory courses is Mrs. Mary Hutchison. The baseball and cross country coach, Mr. Daniel Smothers, teaches General Math and Physical Education. Parkland's head football coach, Mr. Homer Thompson, teaches Physical Education and Anatomy. Coaching the girls sports is Miss Norma Freeman, who teaches Physical Education.

Teachers emphasize creativity; science explored

While the Art and Music teachers encouraged students to be creative and self-expressive, the science teachers opened up a world of scientific knowledge. Along with these in depth studies, teachers took time to get involved in other activities

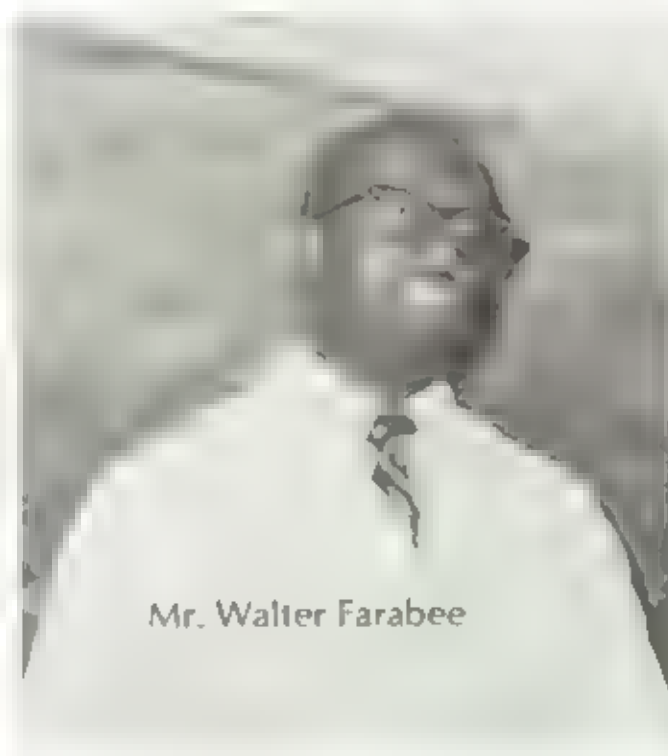

Art teacher, Mrs. Bobbee Loy, toured Spain, Lebanon, Syria and Poland during the summer. Head of the Art Department, Miss Leslie Maddocks, sponsored the Art Club. Mr. Robert Hunt worked hard to organize and ready the marching and the concert bands for performances. Chairman of the Music Department, Mr. Riley Matthews, headed the Parkland choral groups. Biology and Chemistry teacher, Mr. Grant Queen, coached the Chess team. Chess team sponsor, Mr. Walter Farabee, taught Physics.

Crafts learned from teachers

Teachers in the Industrial Arts and Home Economics Departments attempted to teach varied crafts and skills to many Parkland students. They also sought to bring out new and creative ideas to help students become more interested in these areas

Mr. Claude Edwards, chairman of the Industrial Arts Department, helped to keep the school concessions stocked. Mr. Foster Hayes was elected President of the N.C. Industrial Arts Association. Sponsor of the Key Club was Mr. David Reid. Mrs. Geraldine Osborne, chairman of the Home Economics Department, and Mrs. Martha Shelton sponsored the FHA. Mrs. Helen Hairston taught Foods and Nutrition and Boys Home Economics

Teachers help students to get 'on the job' training

As students began preparing themselves for future jobs, Vocational Training teachers trained and helped many in various areas of employment. Teachers assisted those and other students in finding part-time jobs after their regular classes in school. Mrs. Josephine Boone, head of the Vocational Training Department and Distributive Education teacher, works with her husband in their business, Diamond Bridal Service, in her spare time. Mrs. Marty Platt teaches Distributive Education and Marketing. A Distributive Education I and II teacher, Mr. James Jones, keeps busy sponsoring the D.E. Club. After traveling in the midwest, Mrs. Roberta Blake returned to teach Pre-Vocational Training. Sponsor of the VICA Club and ICT I and II teacher, Mr. Charlie Cooper, found time in the summer for house painting.

Miss Lynn McBride

Teachers help to ready students for office employment

Business Education teachers helped students prepare for practical business and office operations. Miss Lynn McBride teaches Cooperative Office Occupations and is head of the Business Education Department. Business Organization Typing and Shorthand teacher Mrs. Christine Hendrick, found time to go to summer school at Wake Forest. Mrs. Linda Bowen, sponsor of the Varsity Cheerleaders, teaches Typing. Bookkeeping teacher, Miss Joan Malcolm, works in the school concessions after school. Sponsor of the Red Cross Club, Miss Mattie Smith, teaches Clerical Recordkeeping and Office Practice and Machines. Mrs. Vera Stepp, Business Law and Notehand teacher, sponsors the Service Teens.

THE IDEAS

Laboratory work vital to Science Department

Experimentation was the framework for this year's exploration into the mysteries of science. Under careful supervision physics students used laboratory procedures dealing with force and motion outdoors. Bicycles with different gear ratios and even a motorcycle were contributed by the students for use in the experiment

Chemistry produced many sights and smells for the entire school. Different boiling points of liquids were discovered in a Bunsen burner and ring stand setup. Changes in chemical structures were just as important in classroom study

Biology was taught on a smaller scale because of the absence of sophomores. New thoughts to old problems of pollution were conveyed in a series of films

Top left: Doc Farabee uses a bicycle to demonstrate Newton's Law to observant physics students Kerry Crutchfield and Ricky Westmoreland

Bottom left: Al Hammons, Marianne Spainhour, and Linda Mann carefully view an experiment they are conducting in physics

Bottom right: Tommy Burkett carefully burns a strip of magnesium as Suzan Spaugh looks on with the proceedings of the experiment

Juniors, seniors study classics, theme writing

American literature was studied from a thematic approach including units such as Struggle for Justice and the Search for Values by some juniors. Others examined American literature chronologically.

Advanced Composition and World Literature were combined into an honors English course for the first time. Seniors studied such greats as Chaucer and Shakespeare in depth to acquire an honors credit.

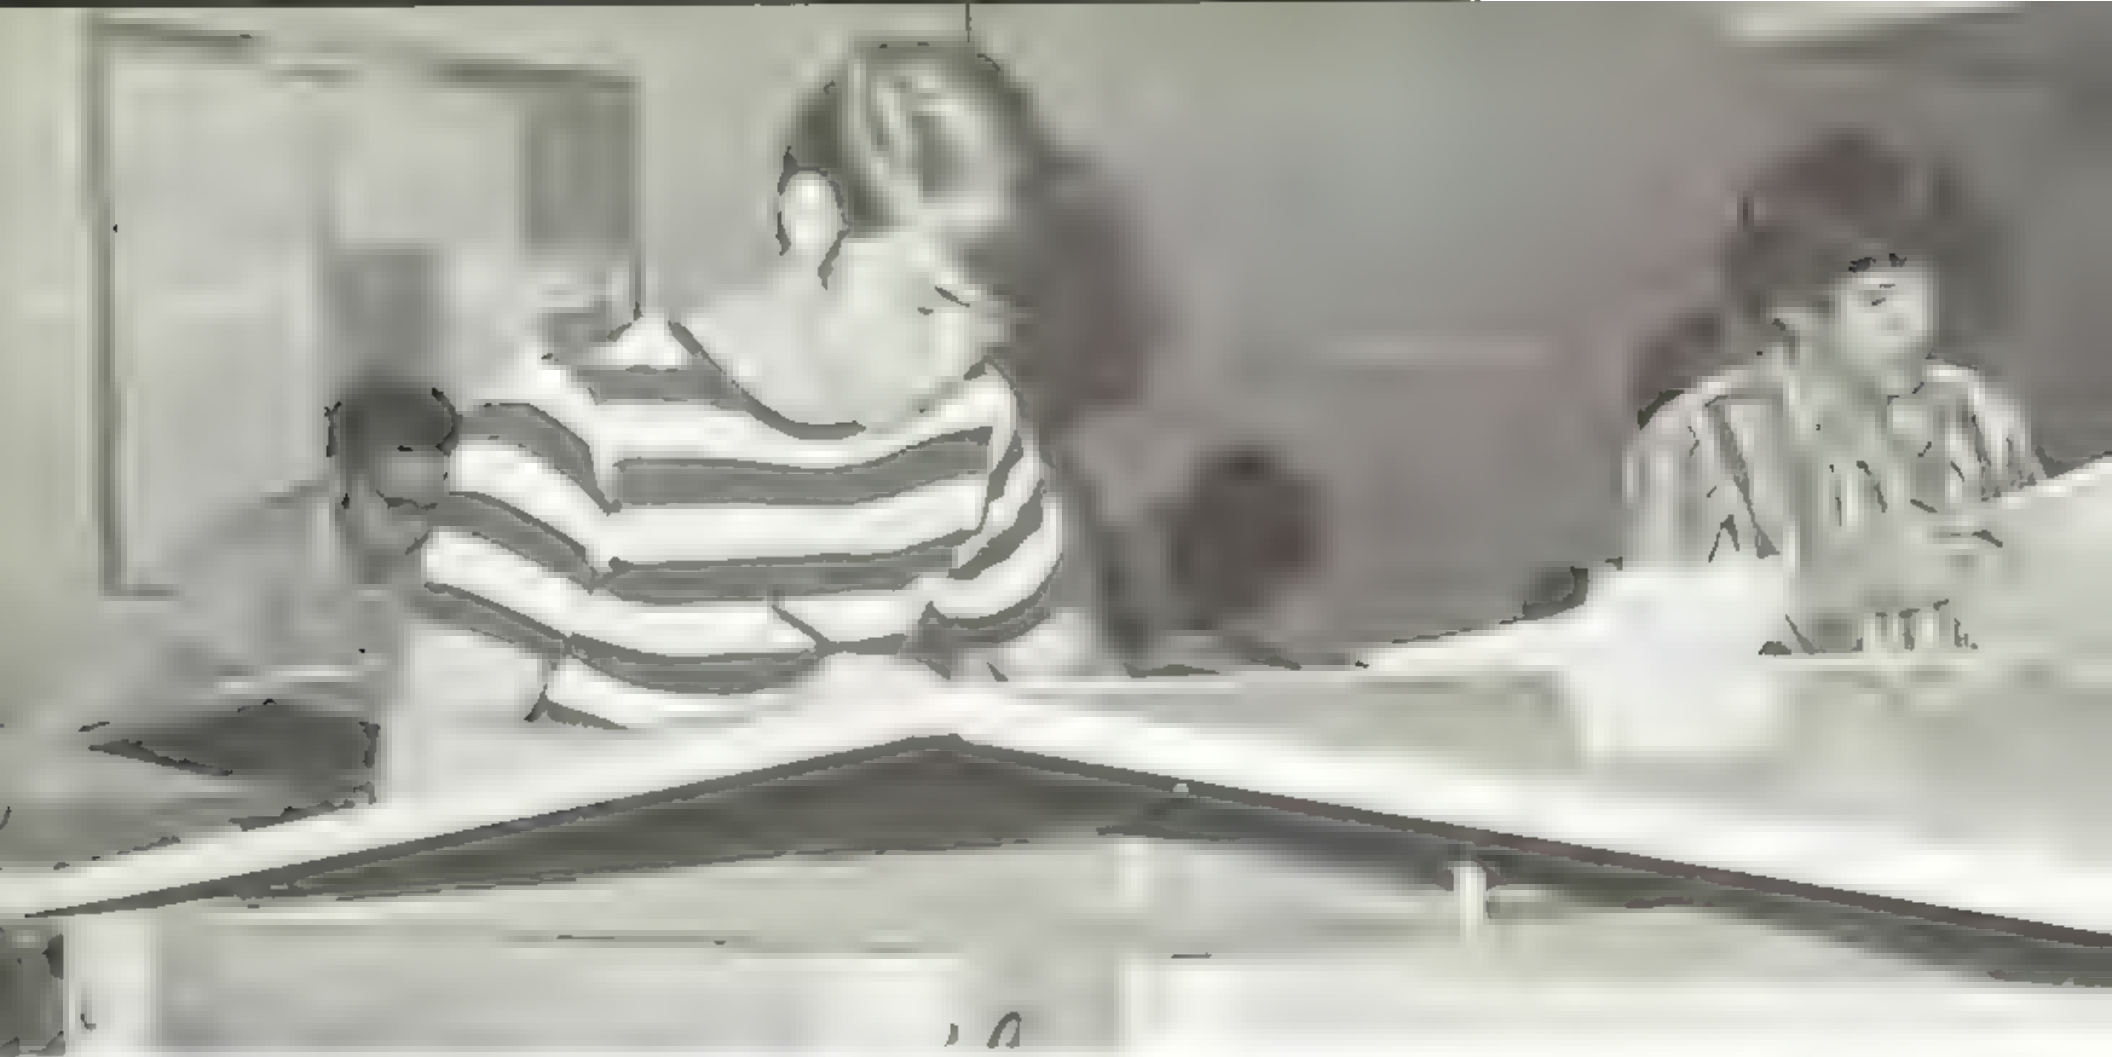

Top left: Renee Faucett, Nancy Burrell, and Randy Gordon make use of the educational records in the senior English resource center. Students in Mrs. Sam's English classes completed independent study projects or mini-courses in place of semester exams

Top middle: Kent Berrier portrays Lady Macbeth in a mock scene from Macbeth in Mrs. Walker's senior English class

Top right: Sam Wilson, as Creon, uses force in an effort to remove Antigone, played by Terry DeViney, in a scene from the play Antigone

Bottom left: Pam Feggins, Kathy Calloway, Deborah Boston, and Alice Bitting participate in a discussion in Parkland's first Black Literature class

Bottom right: Mica Anderson, as Chorus, narrates the beginning of the play Antigone. Terry Howell, Deidre Anderson, Sam Wilson, and Robin O'Harrar wait to be identified before progressing with the play

Industrial Arts classes explore new shop skills

Woodworking classes tackled problems of assembly line production this year. Miniature easels were constructed in the most economical ways in an effort to raise money

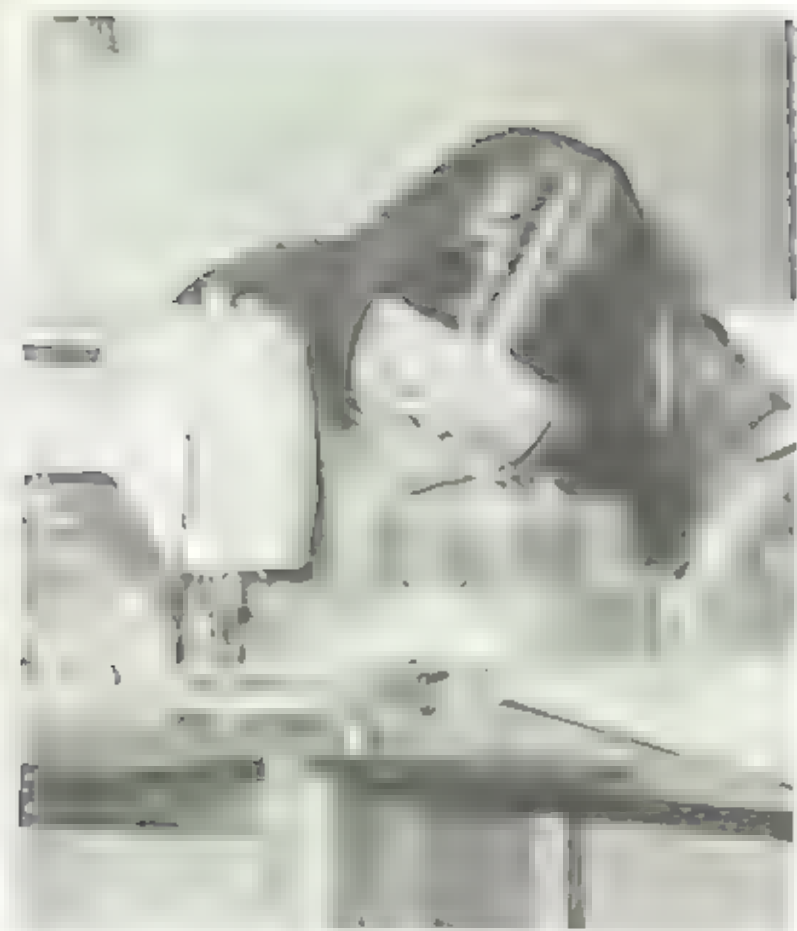

Perfection in the field of architecture was the reason for strict classwork standards. Students developed their resources of skill and creativity in structural designing of buildings

Top: Jimmy Tuttle, Gray Coleman, Terry Campbell, and Ricky Smith work attentively on architectural problems

Middle: Norman Lambeth, Dennis Rothang, and Charlie Flowers assemble the prepared parts of their miniature easels with nails and glue

Bottom: Bill Hair, Timmy Nichols, Gary Montgomery, Stanley Scott, Kenneth Hull, and Charlie Flowers use their valuable class to complete their projects

Students learn basic skills for later assistance

Child Development, Home Furnishings, and Custom Sewing were added to the curriculum this year. Household management and interior decoration were studied in Home Furnishings. The Custom Sewing classes put their newly acquired knowledge to profitable work for them by selling custom-made garments this spring.

Top: Janice Roberts carefully guides her material through the sewing machine

Bottom left: Pinning and cutting out patterns are a few of the basic skills that Howard Harmon is learning in Boys Home Ec

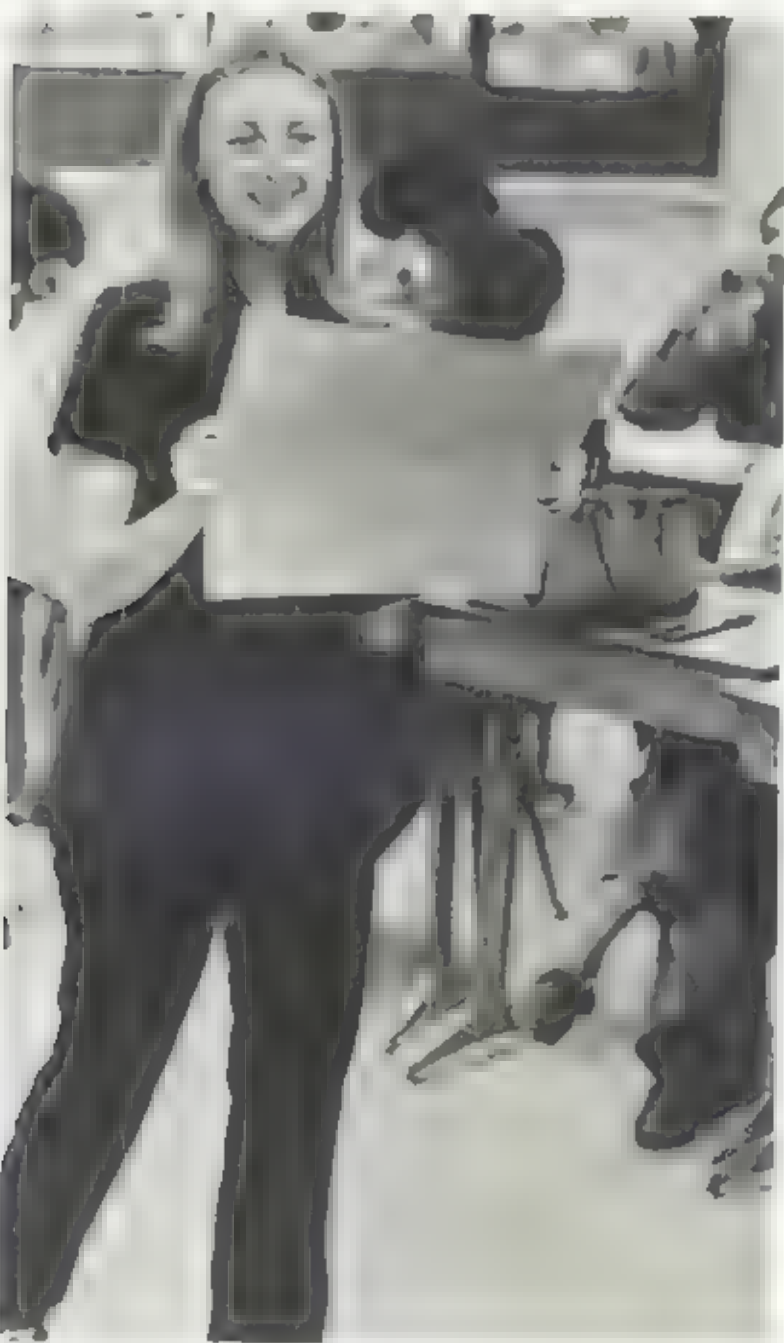

Bottom right: In Child Development Renee Faucett and Becky Hege help children decorate Halloween bags. After observing the children, they discuss each child's behavior. The class listened to children's records and watched Sesame Street. They also studied such things as birth defects

Quarter courses offered in history; inquiry method has continued use

A new potential was explored in history this year. Separate histories of each geographic area of the world provided a great field for human interest. Each quarter the student was offered a choice of Latin American, African, European, and American cultures dwelling upon national problems. Biblical history was the first course of its type offered at Parkland

The inquiry method came into greater use as teachers became more familiar with it. This method allows students to discover history by their own interest and incentive instead of by prepared lectures

Top left: Debbie Collins and Audrey Hines perform Jephthah's sacrifice of his daughter in the new Biblical history course.

Bottom middle: Robin Boles protests a time limit in ASP.

Language labs aid students in comprehension

Coordinating extracurricular activities served to stimulate the study of Spanish, Latin, and French. Spanish exchange students appeared on the scene from Colombia to create better understanding. Latin Week rose from one tiny class of Latin students to involve the entire school with a Roman forum. French was offered on four levels and relied on use of the language laboratory.

Top left: Patricia Reyes, Colombian exchange student, observes a Spanish class from her desk using a book for reference. She lived at the home of Sue and Mike Willis during her visit in America

Students introduced to business organization

Cooperative Office Occupations had a large enrollment this year. Students found half a day of school and half a day working profitable in money and experience.

Pre-Vocational training students worked hard to prepare themselves for immediate entry into the business world after graduation. They were taught the correct way to apply for a job and what to expect at an interview.

Top: Jewel Gordon, Deborah Spaugh, Vanessa Hairston, Denise Kimbrough, and Belinda Sides work on their assignments in a Pre-Vocational Training class. The proper approach to an employer in a big business is essential for a chance of getting the job

Bottom: Practicing for speed and accuracy in typing are Debbie Atkinson, Karen Southern, Vickie White, and Debbie Culler. Typing and shorthand are essential studies offered by the business department for both secretarial and college work

Assembly given by department

To complete the music program offered this year, Mr. Riley Matthews taught Music Theory. This course was for students interested in entering into the field of composition. Music history, and compositions were studied again this year in Music Appreciation. Concerts were presented by the choruses at special assemblies and evening performances

The department purchased a new stroboconn which is a sophisticated tuning instrument for the band

Top: Sylvia Monroe, Patricia Price, Trudy Herrin, Joanne Bates, and Carol Spriggs develop their voices into a harmonious tune

Bottom: Susan Hege, Nevin Fouts, Bill Bedsaul, Mary Bodger, Van Krause, and Randy Johnson practice to improve their musical abilities

P.E. Department develops fitness, emphasizing skills

Physical education strived to execute physical fitness among the students this year. Because of the new school plan, juniors were required to take physical education for an entire year. The course involved physical fitness tests and exercises to increase student endurance. Wrestling was among the sports involving quick, coordinated reflexes. Basketball, football, baseball, and track were also stressed to create strong competitiveness.

Art Department puts stress on understanding

The Gallery of Contemporary Arts was visited by the art classes during October of this year. Audio-visual instruction was assisted by the department's new slide projector, carousel trays, and film loop movie camera. During fourth, fifth, and sixth periods the Art I and II students used live models to aid them in their drawings.

Top: Dawn Bennett works on a poster in the art court. The art classes contributed their services to many projects involving the decoration of the art court and art classroom.

Bottom: Melba McLaurin, Lynn Mendenhall, Martha Bowman, Johnny Plemons, and David Foster mold their paper sculptures into the proper shapes as another part of the art program.

Math students discover many new techniques

Data Processing proved to be the most versatile math class at Parkland. Field trips to the Government Center and Western Electric to operate their keypunch machines helped students realize the importance of computers and gain practical experience.

Geometry and algebra all centered around work in class. Explanation of problems by individuals helped to bring math closer to everyone. Upper level mathematics as well as the basics were taught.

Top: Algebra students, Herman Springs, Mike Spach, Tonie Barksdale, Mike McGlamery, and Yvette Sims work to improve their ability to solve equations

THE ASSEMBLAGE

Student Association exemplifies meaningful, efficient leadership

Attending workshops and conventions in the summer, the Student Association strived to improve the student governments of Forsyth County. Plans were made to devise a workable council under the new 4-2-2-2-2 desegregation plan.

Led by Charlie Key, the Student Association formed a committee to amend the constitution. Sponsored by Mr. C.P. Smith and Miss Selvey Johnson, the Association supervised the activity of the Representative and Activities Assemblies.

Assemblies toil diligently, head successful year

Under the jurisdiction of the Executive Committee, the Activities and Representative Assemblies organized projects and programs to broaden the interests of students

Activities Assembly members faithfully worked under Gary Ray. Various school functions were co-ordinated, such as a homecoming dance, a bonfire, and a Thanksgiving assembly.

Representative Assembly members, concerned with school rules and regulations, were led by Gray Coleman. A student lounge and an improved parking lot situation were goals members sought to achieve.

Board members strive to make '71-'72 a meaningful senior year

Led by chairman, Kathy Calloway, homeroom representatives to the Senior Board prepared ballots for a decision of the class' color, flower, and motto. During the fall, they chose graduation invitations and assisted seniors in ordering. Advised by Mr Marion Griffin, board members assisted in the election of a Spectatus teacher dedication.

Traditional graduation ceremony proudly led by junior marshals

Chosen to escort the class of '72, junior marshals shared in the excitement of the traditional senior finale. Headed by chief Donald Riersen, the marshals were selected on the basis of class rank.

First executing their honorary duties, they served at the senior prom in May.

Then, as the end of the year approached, many long, exhausting hours were spent practicing for class day and graduation. Finally, as the big night arrived, the marshals donned red sashes over white formals and dark suits and proudly led the seniors to the long-awaited event.

Cheerleaders 'spark spirit'

The 1971-72 varsity cheerleaders, led by Ann Thompson, chief, and Sherri Eddinger, co-chief, sparked Mustang spirit during pep rallies, football and basketball games

Cheerleaders sold Parkland t-shirts, shakers, and pens. Money was used for new uniforms and to support the journalism department.

Season closes with 3-7 mark

After a disappointing four losses to nonconference teams, the Mustangs fought back and finished second in the conference. Parkland defeated West Forsyth, Reynolds, and East Forsyth in conference competition. Three Mustangs, Charlie Kearns, Curtis Richardson, and Bill Scales were named to the all City-County.

Victory over Reynolds is highlight of season

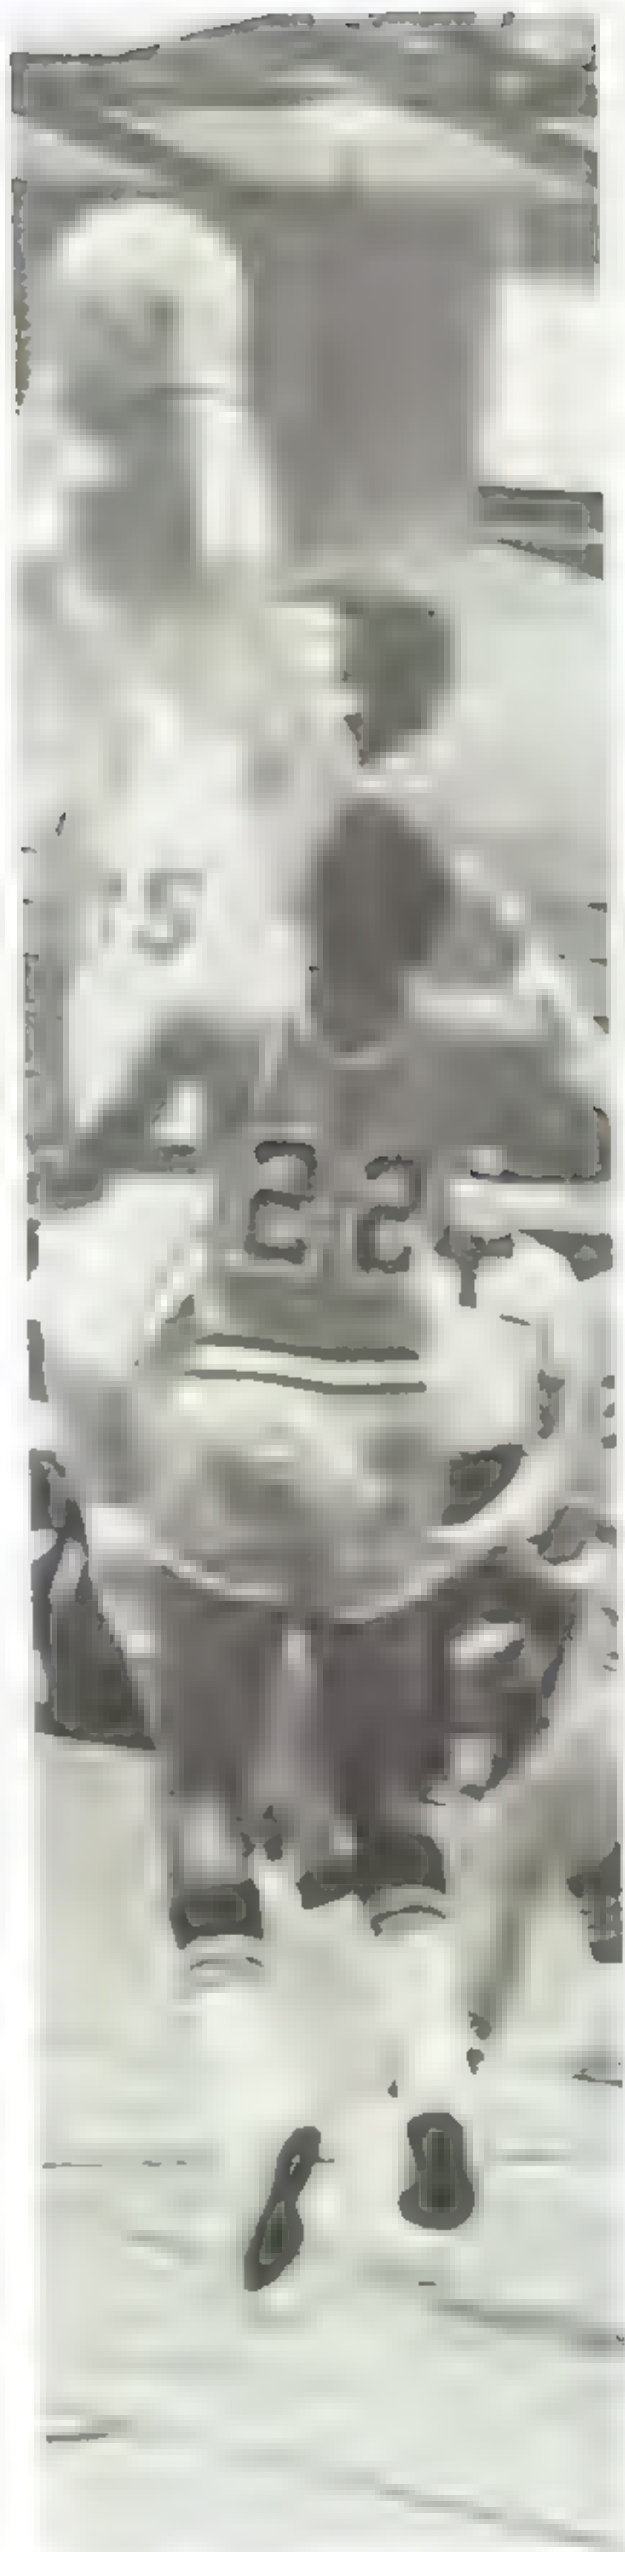

For the first time in Parkland's history, the Mustangs defeated the Reynolds Demons 14-13. Parkland scored first on a 59-yard run by Horace Fulton. David Lakey added the extra point making the score 7-0. Reynolds later knotted the score at 7-7. The Mustangs scored again when Frank Draper received a Demon kick at the Parkland 20 and raced to the end zone. David Lakey once again followed with the extra point, which proved to be the game winning point. Late in the fourth quarter, the Demons scored on a pass play and elected to go for a win rather than a tie but their efforts were spoiled by Lee Malone. This game proved to be the highlight of the season.

Mustangs use teamwork for good season

Using speed and agility the Mustang cagers relied on teamwork for a successful season. The Mustangs had a very quick offensive team led by Jeff Weatherman, Tyrone Hatchett, Dexter Pierce, Chris Williams and Ricky Butner. Most of the season the team played a very tough zone defense, sometimes using a half court zone trap that was very effective. In their first game of the season the Mustangs defeated Bishop McGuinness 65-48 at Parkland. Ricky Butner got 18 rebounds and 12 points to lead Parkland. The Mustangs played rough and showed much potential for future games.

Butner, Pierce, and Hatchett guide '72 squad

Tyrone Hatchett hit a 15-foot jump shot with 14 seconds left in the game to give Parkland an exciting 54-53 win over Reynolds in their first conference game of the year. The game was close all the way. In a see-saw battle in the second half Reynolds' leading scorer, Sam Kennedy, fouled out with 6:09 left to play. Parkland immediately went to work under the boards with Ricky Butner scoring 5 consecutive points. Stanley Griffin hit two crucial free throws which gave Parkland a 52-51 lead. Reynolds in turn hit a pair of free throws to regain the lead. Parkland missed a shot from the corner and Reynolds got the ball. While in a stall one of the Demons threw the ball away and this set up the game winning shot for the Mustangs.

J.V. cagers end year with potential

J.V. cagers got their first win of the season against Reynolds by a score of 63-42. Coach William Carr said the team finally started working together. Bud Grant from the varsity was a great asset to the team. Walter Barber, Terry Feggins, and Curtis Ingram improved greatly as the season progressed. The J.V. team after a year of experience, will produce vital players for the varsity squad next season

Cross-country led by Key, Johnson, and Mathis in '72

Led by the experienced running of Charlie Key, Tom Johnson, and Rick Mathis, the cross country team had an average season. In a duo meet between Parkland and West, the Mustangs made a good showing with Charlie Key finishing second and Rick Mathis, fifth. In a meet between Parkland, Reynolds, and Elkin, Charlie Key placed fourth, and Rick Mathis finished seventh. Rick Mathis led the team in the city-county meet by finishing eighth. Daniel Smothers was the coach

Baseball team combines skill with experience

Relying on the experience and ability of the returning lettermen, the Mustang baseball team tried to improve the 11-4 record from the 1970-71 season. The returning lettermen this year were Tim Atwood, Terry Atkins, Ricky Butner, Gary Montgomery, Kent Leonard, and Jerry Stoker. The Mustangs also counted on support from juniors from the '70-71 team. Ricky Butner, a right hander, led the pitching staff. Coach Daniel Smothers felt that the team was also aided by new team members from other schools

Wrestlers work hard to reach the state finals

Wrestling is one of the most strenuous sports at Parkland and takes much stamina. The Mustang wrestlers struggled through a very tough season. Many of the team members had excellent individual records but due to many forfeits in certain weight classes the team results were not as good as expected. The Mustangs defeated High Point Andrews 39-27 for their first win of the season at Parkland. Sam Wilson and Neal Cowan were elected captains for the '71-72 season.

Running events are highlight of track year

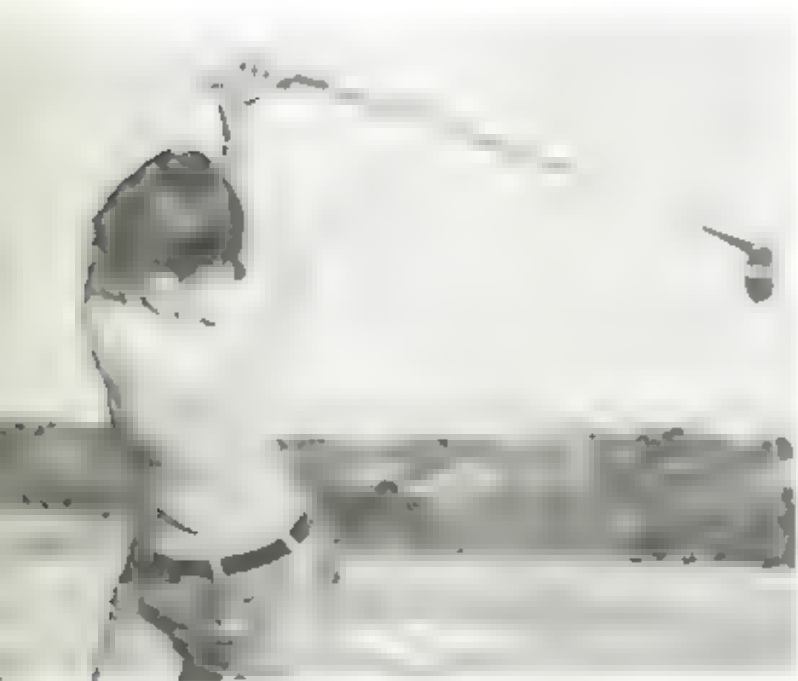

Running events such as the mile and 440 were the highlight of the track season. The development of juniors for next year's team was the main goal this year. The team consisted mostly of seniors under the guidance of Coach Jim Moose. Charlie Key and Frank Draper, paced the city-county and other district meets. They won the Guilford-Forsyth County meet and the Greensboro sectionals last year and defended those titles this season.

Mustang golfers rely on ability and experience

Parkland golfers were led by veterans Kerry Crutchfield, Darrell Pulliam, Tommy Little, Cam Sloan, and Dennis Jarrard. Sectional and conference championships have played an important role in past years, but the 1972 golfers' aim was to improve last year's standing of fourth in the conference. The Mustangs lacked a consistent par shooter, but Coach Grant Queen relied on balance to make the difference.

Parkland netters practice daily to develop quickness and skills

With just one letterman returning the Mustang tennis team devoted their season to rebuilding. Larry Revels, the only veteran on the team was aided by new team members Steve Trantham, Scott Fulton, and Mike Dees. They learned the basic skills of serving, backhand, and forehand shots.

When weather permitted, the team practiced regularly during the winter season for their spring matches. In past seasons the tennis teams have not had much support due to other more popular spring sports. This year the team had more support than in past years and is gaining more popularity at Parkland. The team worked hard for a successful season under the leadership of James Chambers

Team develops coordination and discipline

After losing many close ballgames, the girls' basketball team defeated Reynolds in a tournament game 42-29. The team also defeated North 35-28 and progressed as the season closed. The scoring was well-balanced with everyone contributing to the team. The coach was Miss Norma Freeman.

Softball players use basic skills in good season

With drills in batting, pitching, catching, and fielding, the girls' softball team prepared to meet their opponents. Working with returning players and newcomers, Miss Norma Freeman combined the teams' efforts and skills in producing a well-rounded and well-balanced team.

Speedball team compiles 5-3 record

Coached by Mrs. Nancy Oakley and aided by the experience of returning players, Parkland's speedball team began the season with an 8-4 win over Reynolds. After losing to East, the girls came back and defeated North. The teams' highlight of the season came when they handed the undefeated West a 7-6 loss. Dorothy Lewis and Cathy Moore were named to the All-County speedball team.

It's a brand new morning
Clear and sweet and true
There's a new day dawning
And it's glowing
You new words come
You new voice comes
And it's glowing - together
Each day that passes
Coming in peace
Coming in love

Editor's notes

The Spectatus staff began working on the yearbook during the summer with only one returning staff member and the rest of us inexperienced. We tried to think of a theme that depicted this school year. After the school board devised the 4-2-2-2-2 plan, Parkland no longer had a sophomore class. Many students were also transferred to Parkland. Keeping all of this in mind, we came up with "There's a new day dawning." It was a new day for the transfer students who were suddenly supposed to feel loyal to a school that was previously their rival. It was a new day for the seniors as they realized they would soon be graduating and stepping into a whole new world. The juniors felt the new day dawning as they looked forward to being seniors next year. Trying to capture this school year on film was a challenge I had to face. Because of my height, I was constantly standing on something so I could shoot. I remember one time I was waiting for just the right football shot and I almost got stampeded by a herd of defensive players. We all remember the power failure; there we sat typing copy by candlelight. Looking back on the past six months I realize what seemed like major catastrophes then are funny now.

There are so many people I want to give special thanks. First of all, my staff, who worked many long hours, not only after school, but also during Christmas, exams and on Sundays; Mrs. Windsor, who also worked hard and was always there to answer our questions and to give suggestions; Mr. Allen White who processed all our film, and taught me how to use the camera; Mrs. Jo Walker, who helped us with our layout. I also want to thank my family and friends who stood by me and tried to understand all that I was going through. Last but not least Mark North, who took pictures for me when I had to be at five other places at once, taking pictures too.

The Spectatus staff hopes that the new day that is dawning for each of us is "coming in peace, coming in joy, coming in love."
